

Juan Carlos' Immigration Story

By Abriz

I am Abriz. I am 9 years old. I interviewed my Dad Juan Carlos Teliz. He has a family in the USA, If you want to know how it started just read this story. I hope you enjoy my story.

Childhood

Juan Carlos Teliz was born in Mexico City, He now lives in the USA. He was born on March 27, 1967. He was born with 3 brothers and 2 sisters and he was the oldest. He played in the streets with marbles and toys that he made. There was not much technology. There was a law that he could come to the USA so he did.

Opportunity

He was a teen when he moved here. There was an opportunity to have a better life on his journey. He had never seen the ocean before so he was so nervous. It was fun. He learned English. His journey had no obstacles. It was easy to immigrate. The sensation felt different because of his self esteem. He got a job and decided to go back to school and became Christian and decided to become a pastor for a couple of years after he married my mom. But he got into art first and worked at a theater.

Family

Juan Carlos got married to Zarella, my mom and had 3 kids, Joen, Abriz and Zary. My dad still lives here. People in my family are still immigrating here and trying to have a better life like everyone else in my family who are already here. My whole family thinks that it is just great living here.

Conclusion

As you can see immigrating is not as easy as you think if you ever immigrate as soon as it is over it will be all worth it in the end. People immigrate every day and say it is worth it and I agree.
